Amer Ben All, That's His Real Name, Has Been Imane Ten Years - Will Be Sent Back to Algiers-Strong Evidence to Show That the Man Is Innocent.

Amer Ben Ali, alias George Frank, alias Frenchy," convicted on July 10, 1891, of nurder in the second degree and sentenced State prison for life for killing Caroline Brown, better known as "Old Shakespeare in a room of the East River Hotel, at Water and Catherine streets, on the night of April 24, 1891, was pardoned by Gov. Odell yes-"Frenchy" is now confined in the State Hospital for criminal insane at Dannemora. The first news that he had been pardoned was carried to the hospital last evening by a correspondent of THE SUN. The Arab had been locked in his cell for the night and the Superintendent concluded it would be better not to tell him of the good news until this morning. The crime for which this illiterate Arab from Algiers has spent nearly eleven years in prison and more than a decade among criminal lunatics, was one of the most famous in the history of crime in New York. It occurred at the time that "Jack the Ripper" was abroad in London, killing and then mutilating the bodies of the outcasts of Whitechapel. He came and murdered, went his way and murdered again, and Scotland Yard discovered not so much as a trace of his footprints. One morning the cable despatches to the New York papers cable despatches to the New York papers told the story of one of the Ripper's most revolting murders. Byrnes was in Mulberry street then and he was asked that morning what would happen if "Jack the Ripper" were to ply his trade in New York. "He would be caught within twenty-four hours," was Byrnes's reply.

His words were hardly in type before he was called upon to make them good. An old piece of the flotsam and jetsam of the waterfront, who had drifted along the East River shore for years, went into the East River shore for years, went into the East River Hotel with a man about 10 o'clook on the night of Thursday, April 23, 1891. The couple were assigned to room 31, and the clerk remarked that "Old Shakespeare" had finally landed a fish. The body of the woman was found next day horribly mutitated in the room to which she and her companion had been assigned. The man had disappeared and no one had seen him leave the hotel.

Byrnes left Mulberry street to take personal charge of the work of his sleuths. Finally, several days after the murder, he arrested "Frenchy," a seller of fruit, with a stand not far from the scene of the crime, charged him with the murder and secured a conviction in the second degree. It was established that the man had occupied a room directly across the hall from Room 31 on the night of the murder, and the police said that on the walls of that room and on the door bloodstains were found. Expert chemists testified that the scrapings from beneath "Frenchy's" finger nails showed on analysis that they contained the same substances found in the stomach of the murdered woman.

And so the Algerian, who couldn't speak

word of English, was sentenced to life imprisonment. After a few months in imprisonment. After a few months in Sing Sing, his mind gave way and he was sent to the State Hospital for Criminal Insane at Matteawan. From there he was transferred to Dannemora about eighteen months ago.

"Frenchy" owes his pardon to the efforts put forth by Ovide Robillard, the French lawyer of 25 Pine street. In 1897, the French Consul-General of New York asked Mr. Robillard to take up Ben Ali's case. In October of that year a petition for the man's pardon containing 5,000 names was presented to Gov. Black, who refused was presented to Gov. Black, who refused to interfere. Another appeal was made to Gov. Roosevelt with the same result.

Then Mr. Robillard secured the affidavits of several newspaper men, who reported the case and who reached the East River Hotel before the police, in which it was stated that there were no blood stains in "Frenchy's" room or on the reporters exthe room door when the reporters ex-amined them. That was in the nature of amined them. That was in the nature of new evidence and more followed when Mr. Robillard found George Damon of the firm of Damon & Peet, manufacturers, in Beekman street. Mr. Damon told of having had in his employ at his place in Cranford, N. J., a man whose first name was Frank, whose appearance tallied much better than Frenchy's did with that of the man who went to the hotel with "Old Shakespeare."

Damon said that Frank was not at home on the night of the murder and disappeared on the night of the murder and disappeared the day the case was reported in the papers. After he disappeared there was found in his room over Damon's stable a bloodstained pair of trousers and shirt and a key, with a tag attached, bearing the number 31. The key was like those to the rooms of the East River Hotel. After reviewing all this new evidence, Gov. Odell concluded that the man ought to be pardoned. Mr. Robillard said last night that "Frenchy," who has always asserted his innocence, will probably be sent back to Algiers, where he left a wife and children, at the expense of the French Government. After he disappeared there was found in Police Captain Vredenburgh of the Oak street station was told vesterday that there was "something doing" at 227 Park row. Taking four of his plain clothes men with him the captain started out on a tour of investigation. This was at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. At 227 Park row, near Chatham square, they found John McColligan's saloon. Capt Vredenburgh led his men up through a hallway to the floor above the saloon. There they found a door. The the saloon. There they found a door. The door had two lights of glass in it, and peeping through the glass the captain saw a crowd of men reading. They did not have the appearance of medical students although some one in the hall whispered that they were holding "post mortens on form at Aqueduct." Some one else said they were dissecting "past performances" and "studying the dope."

There were no medical instructors in sight, but the men behind a partition ap-peared to be becturing. The crowd evi-dently appreciated the lectures for they got in line and pushed five-dollar-bills through little windows at the speakers.

CURING CONSUMPTIVES HERE

CITY'S NEW HOSPITAL HAS SAVED MANY OF ITS PATIENTS.

Statistics of Its Progress Issued by the Commissioner of Charities - 50 Patients Out of 273 Discharged as Improved in Little Over a Month.

The Commissioner of Charities gave out statement yesterday on the results attained thus far at the phthisis hospital on Blackwell's Island opened on Feb. 1. The whole number of patients admitted to the hospital to date has been 273. With few exceptions, all of the patients admitted were in more or less advanced stages of pulmonary tuberculosis. Rather more than 50 per cent. were in the last stage of the disease, with every indication of death not far distant. The other 50 per cent. consisted of two classes: first, those in whom all the typical symptoms of tuberculosis were present, but who yet retained a fair amount of strength and bodily nutrition; second, those whose general condition was less favorable, yet who retained sufficient strength to be up for the greater part, if not all, of the day.

Of the 273 patients admitted 55 have been discharged, 50 as improved and 5 not improved. The 50 patients who had improved have, as a rule, either returned o their work or have gone to the country or the mountains at the suggestion of physicians. Twenty-eight cases have been transferred to other wards on account of surgical needs, or as showing no evidence of phthisis; 76 patients who when admitted were in an advanced stage of the disease have died. There remain in the hospital

Of the patients remaining 20 are new cases not yet classified, 40 are unable to leave their beds, and 54 are less advanced cases. Of these, 25 have shown decided improvement and show an average gain in weight of 6.75 pounds; 13 show less improvement, but an average gain in weight of 1.9 pounds; 16 have not improved, and show an average loss in weight of 1.31

Detailed accounts of several cases are given in the statement. A laborer, 48 years old, admitted on Feb. 3, has gained 16 pounds in weight, coughs less, feels strong and well, and has had no hemorrhage since entrance. Another, 42 years old, admitted on March 10, after severe hemorrhages has gained 7½ pounds, sleeps well, and has a good appetite; his general condition is excellent.

An iron worker, 50 years old, who entered on Feb. 1, has gained 8½ pounds in weight, and his general strength has greatly increased. A laborer, 33 years old, admitted March 24, has gained 3½ pounds, and has improved in health so much that he works about the ward most of the time. Another, admitted on Feb. 1, poorly nourished, gained 16½ pounds, and left the hospital on April 9 in good condition.

A salesman, 36 years old, in the second stage of the disease, has gained 6 pounds in weight, and has lost all trace of tuberculosis bacilli.
